What's New In?

This addon lets you use EZ Iconz for 3D icons. This adds a new button to EZ Iconz toolbar in the "Tools" menu, and a new tab in the main "EZ Iconz" window. It's ready for version 3.0 of EZ Iconz (coming soon). In the now routine, and more and more frustrating, legal proceedings surrounding the charges of illegal entry, border crossing, and aggravated assault with a deadly weapon against Mr. Nidal Hasan, the U.S. Army Major and psychiatrist, it has become increasingly clear that the factual details of the case should not stand in the way of sending a message to the public about the dangers of gun violence. According to various reports and media sources, such as The New York Times, it was, in fact, the weapon that was used by Major Hasan to commit the murders. He was armed with a handgun with a drum magazine, which allowed him to fire off about 30 rounds per minute. The drum magazine would provide him with ammunition to shoot the victims again and again and again. The gun used by Major Hasan is a Remington.45. But the weapon is described as a Sig Sauer pistol and a.45 caliber Sig Sauer "J" frame. That should give pause for thought to anyone who feels the Second Amendment to the Constitution is a protection for a citizen's right to bear arms. In fact, it's about just the opposite. It's about citizens' right to bear arms against tyranny. A side note here – the handgun involved in this killing spree is a.45. The military version of this pistol is the Sig Sauer J Series pistol, otherwise known as the "Panther." This handgun was built in 1989. In 1993, an 8-round magazine was available. The standard magazine held seven rounds. There was also a 10-round magazine available for the gun. This magazine allowed the shooter to fire off roughly 10 bullets per minute. The military model "Panther" was replaced by the Sig Sauer P220. This pistol has been issued for more than 15 years. It was also built in 1989. There is a 9-round magazine available for the pistol. This magazine allows the shooter to fire off roughly nine bullets per minute. In 2001, an optional 10-round magazine was made available. The standard magazine held eight rounds. I'm told that, for the past year, the U.S. military has been replacing the 7-round magazine with the 11-round magazine. At least according to reports, only 10 soldiers have ever taken advantage of this new offering. In recent years, the military has been reducing the number of rounds that are available for this particular pistol. That's a long-standing issue. I was told by a military official
