PowerToys XP is a set of tools designed to improve the Windows XP operating system by adding new tools or functions. Most of the tools aim to improve your productivity by adding new functions. For instance, you can use the Desktop Manager to create four independent desktops with different backgrounds in order to better manage the opened windows. It is a very good enhancement for the users that work with a lot of applications and lack desktop space. The Slide Show Wizard is designed to help you create an HTML presentation with just a few clicks. You only need to select the images and to customize the layout of the slideshow. No HTML coding skills are required and the presentation can be opened in any Internet browser on any computer. The Image Resizer tool allows you to change size of an image without opening it with other applications. You just need to right-click the image and to choose the new image size. It can resize multiple images at the same time and includes the option to enter a custom image size. Most important, it does not alter the aspect ratio of the image. The most powerful tool from the collection is Tweak UI since it allows you to adjust the aspect or the behavior of multiple Windows applications. You can use it to change the Internet Explorer search engine or the drives displayed in My Computer window. It can save you a lot of time by allowing you to customize multiple preferences from a single window. This entire collection is developed in order to enhance the Windows experience and features easy to use utilities that are completely integrated in the operating system interface. If you are a Windows XP user and need more features without installing complicated programs, you should give Microsoft PowerToys XP a try. Microsoft PowerToys XP is a set of tools developed in partnership with Microsoft to add new features to Windows XP. It can be downloaded for free from Microsoft. There are 11 tools included in this package. These tools can be found in the \Programs\Windows XP Power Toys\Misc folder. Let's see what each tool has to offer: 1. Desktop Manager This tool is designed to help you change the appearance and behavior of your computer's desktop. It can add up to five independent desktops where you can place different folders or applications in each one. You can add or remove the desktops with just a few clicks. A desktop can be locked so that it is not accessible to anyone but the administrator. The desktop manager offers the option to add new icons for each selected folder, to move and add shortcuts to the desktop, to change the display properties (color and transparency), to restart the system or to add or remove the workspaces. In addition, there is an option to change the desktop background and to add or remove a screensaver. If you want to access the manager when the desktop is locked, you need to access the desktop properties and to unlock it. A lot of users find this tool really useful because it allows them to manage opened applications and files without being disturbed. 2. Image Resizer This tool is designed to resize multiple images in a single session without opening them with other applications. You can change the size, the orientation, the crop, the brightness, the contrast, the resize quality, the effects and the scale and the it can be applied to photos, screencasts, video and digital camera images. 3. Slide Show Wizard This tool is designed to assist you in creating an HTML presentation. You can use it to select the background and screen the images, to create an HTML file, to add the images and to customize the layout of the slide show. It is especially useful to non-technical users that do not want to learn HTML coding or customize other tools. 4. Tweak UI This tool is designed to change the view or the behavior of multiple Windows applications. This will be easier if you do not use Windows XP. 5. My MP3 Player This tool allows you to customize the location of your Windows XP multimedia player. You just need to right-click the volume icon and to select the new location. 6.
